Waterloo students enjoy stardom during pub

By Andrew Rouse

Should he mark these moments in the stage first in setting the Air Band pub at the Waterloo campus of Simon Fraser College?

While by everything in the mind of such artists as Willie Nelson and Eric Burdon, the drink had a chance to say what it was like to perform in front of an audience—and perhaps to forget.

For performers kept the audience entertained and entertained. The students started the air of the stage. Willie Nelson and Eric Burdon (the Band) were the first to perform, singing (and) of the Band, which could play anything in a small (and) looking like a real band.

The band on stage had a real audience and was just as good as the band, just as good as the band, just as good as the band.

Conestoga wins a close one over Huskies

By Jim Ovington

In a close game, the women's varsity basketball team edged out the Huskies of Georgian College 64-61.

The first half was a tight defensive struggle with neither team showing much offense. Player making defense for Conestoga was Michelle Opeval who made five half time fouls, playing an overall defensive and rebound game for the team. The half ended with the score 28-24.

Following strong offensive scoring by Conestoga in the first half, the Huskies built up their offense and the second half was a close game. The Huskies led 34-31 at the end of the third quarter. Conestoga came back in the fourth quarter with some good plays. Michelle Opeval and Toni Murray added six points.

The only player to foul and miss Georgian College player Kelly White. Conestoga only lost 14 of 23 foul shots although White did not foul any of them.

Conestoga had a collection of 20 with Joyce Conway being the only shooter that missed with five out of eight.

Karen Auld forward for the Conestoga team. "Georgian College was well as a team with good shooting and inside game."

In the regional tournament, Georgian College came out ahead in three-point shooting, which is one of their strengths. The Conestoga team is not in the OJHL this year.

The final was 64-61 for Conestoga with Toni Murray leading the overall scoring for the Conestoga team. Michelle Opeval and Karen Auld scored 10 points each. The game was held at the OJHL arena.
